An Established History Supporting Student Organizations

JWU has been recognized as the top Collegiate DECA chapter (based on membership).

NSO Membership Has its Privileges

By joining JWU NSO, you'll meet people with similar interests while strengthening your personal and professional goals. You will gain career knowledge, put your proficiency to the test, improve your leadership skills, build your network, become involved in community service, and even run for local, state or national office. Here's what JWU NSO members experience:

- Attend seminars focusing on new job categories and growth trends.
- Compete against students from all over the U.S. and beyond.
- Participate in leadership conferences and seminars.

- Organize and execute special events and professional development workshops.
- Exchange ideas and connect with students and professionals from all over the country.
- Meet with local business leaders and organizations to gain an understanding of community service.

MEET SOME OF OUR JWU NSO STUDENTS

Davis Jean-Noel '21
Marketing

*International Collegiate
DECA Executive Vice President
2021-2022*

Davis Jean-Noel earned a degree in marketing with a specialization in digital media and marketing analytics from JWU's Providence campus in May 2021. He was elected as the 2021-2022 International Collegiate DECA Executive Vice President.

Davis started his journey with DECA as a freshman at Mount Olive High School in New Jersey, where he became a positive influence for his chapter as well as a strong competitor. Through Collegiate DECA, Davis discovered his passion for marketing and leadership, quickly becoming more devoted to supporting his fellow students and community. After competing in Collegiate DECA, he was elected his chapter's Vice President of Marketing & Communications where he built up his chapter's brand presence on campus with vast skills in social media marketing and creative advertising. Soon after, Davis spearheaded the marketing for his association's conference and finished strong by becoming Chapter President.

"Collegiate DECA is such a fantastic platform to help members build their own brand and career." ~ Davis Jean-Noel

Colin DeVico, '22
Tourism & Hospitality Management

*National Student Organizations President
(JWU PVD campus)
2020-2022*

Colin DeVico, from Medford, New Jersey, just completed his senior year studying Tourism & Hospitality Management at Johnson & Wales University's Providence campus. An advocate, champion, and leader in high school for his local and state FCCLA chapter, Colin chose to continue his leadership journey and expand his horizons via the National Student Organizations. A top role play, top test score, and top overall regional conference medalist during his freshman and sophomore years, Colin had the opportunity to compete on the international stage as a part of the 2019 and 2020 Collegiate DECA International Career Development Conference. Colin, who served as the 2020-2022 National Student Organization President, is a young, inspired leader who has paved his way to a legacy within and beyond the National Student Organizations.

Amanda Gray '23
Baking & Pastry Arts/
Food Service Management

*Gold Medal Winner,
2021 SkillsUSA
National Leadership &
Skills Conference*

Amanda Gray was a Gold Medal winner at the 2021 SkillsUSA National Leadership & Skills Conference, which drew thousands of students from across the U.S. This was the first time Amanda, a Baking & Pastry Arts/Food Service Management major from Wantagh, New York, had competed at a national level. Her advice to future competitors:

"Just get started. Focus on what you're doing and let everything else fade away. Whether it's a goal you set for yourself or even just a way to have fun and gain experience, competing is something I'd definitely recommend, and JWU is a great place to do it." ~ Amanda Gray
